

HOME COMING NUMBER 35TH DIVISION

THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC.

MAY, 1919.

TO THE BOYS OF THE 35TH DIVISION

IN the name of the people of Missouri, in the name of the fathers and mothers, the wives, sweethearts and friends, and with an overflowing heart, I bid you a glad and joyous welcome home.

Since the day you left the homeland our thoughts and our prayers have followed you. During the darkest days of the war, when you were called upon to turn back the best divisions of the German Army, we had full confidence that victory would crown your efforts. Our expectations have been more than fulfilled. You have added new laurels and new glories to the record of the State and nation. You have honored all of us.

In the great battle of the Argonne, through a rain of shells and the roar of cannon, for days you followed the old flag and won undying fame. We mourn your fallen comrades. The recollection of their noble deeds and the sacrifice of their young lives dries our tears, mellow our hearts and removes the sting of bitterness from our grief. To you we bid welcome, thrice welcome home.

Fredrick D. Gardner
Governor

Welcome home, boys of the 35th Division

We are even more glad to see you fellows back home than you are to get here--we've missed you a lot around St. Louis.

Now that you're home again the first thing you'll probably think about is civilian clothes. You'll want good clothes and correctly styled clothes—we have them here for you.

Here's the sign you've seen in France and all over America

This label on your clothes insures perfect clothes satisfaction

Greetings From the Nation, State and City

GREETING FROM WAR DEPARTMENT

ADJ. GEN. CLARK'S GREETING

OFFICIAL GREETING TO THE 35TH DIVISION FROM CHIEF OF ARMY GENERAL STAFF AND ACTING SECRETARY OF WAR.

(Extended through The St. Louis Republic.)

The service of the 35th Division and, especially, its successes in the Argonne fight merit the recognition and praise not only of the people of Missouri and Kansas but of the entire nation. The War Department welcomes the opportunity to extend its official greetings to these boys, who were ready to make the supreme sacrifice if that should be demanded in the execution of the duties assigned to them. Words can but inadequately express their nation's gratitude.

The people of our nation will be glad to join in the welcome accorded the 35th and to congratulate the friends, relatives and fellow-citizens upon the return of "their boys" with a record of which they may well be proud.

MAYOR NIEL'S WELCOME

OUR BOYS: It was with something of a pang too deep for words and a pride we couldn't express that we saw you start off on the Great Adventure.

It is with something that again finds us speechless that we see you returning to your homes and loved ones—victorious, after imperishable deeds under alien skies.

Your forbears never harkened unresponsively to the plea of freedom menaced, nor to the innocent unjustly oppressed. It has been your proud privilege to be among the first of your nation's sons to answer that call in Europe. God grant that it may be the last time your lives and arms shall be called upon to defend Freedom and Right!

A great many of your best lie in the white-crossed rows of the Argonne. Their memories shall be always kept bright, and the sorrowing ones may rest assured that, while no words can ever fully atone for their grief, theirs is almost an enviable lot in having sacrificed their dearest ones to such a cause.

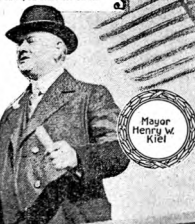

And who is there that may attempt to estimate the service those dead have rendered to humanity? Surely I cannot.

But for the living we have a happy home and yearning hearts and arms. You have back among us and we know you'd come—if you came at all—victorious in this God-given fight.

Heroes, we welcome you! You have founded a heritage that your sons and daughters and their sons and daughters and theirs and theirs shall always hold beyond price. St. Louis mingles its tears and its laughter on this glad day of your home-coming. It's a day we long have awaited.

Allow me, on behalf of the city and our great citizen-family to extend to you—our boys—a welcome—

—a warm welcome home.

Henry Niel

TO the Officers and Men of the 35th Division:

When with heavy heart I said goodbye to my old command I knew that when the supreme test came upon the field of battle you would measure up to the full standard of that hero of heroes, the American civilian soldier, and that you would bring undying glory to your State. Words are too feeble to pay tribute to your matchless gallantry, your heroic achievements.

The three-soldier Missouri and Kansas have met and beaten against overwhelming numbers and in the face of seemingly insuperable obstacles, the picked pick of the greatest military minds. And through it all your bearing has been that of soldiers in the fullest meaning of the term. No Missouri or Kansas National soldier has been called upon to explain; not one among your own officers or men has felt the sting of conscience or been pointed out by the finger of accusation. Your record is clear; your accomplishments beyond the power of words to tell. Your modesty has been that of brave men.

Your boast in vainglorious speech are not of your number. Your deeds speak for themselves and you fear not that history will record the real heroes of this war. The casualty lists bear mute testimony to the magnitude of the Missouri and Kansas officers led their men and that the men followed with grim determination their officers with a devotion which speaks the comradeship of the civilian-soldier.

Many of you have been cited for acts of rarest courage beyond the call of duty; others, full of deserving, have been overlooked, as goes the fortune of war. But to your State you are all heroes; all have rendered distinguished service and to each will be given a bit of bronze, poor in intrinsic worth, but rich in its significance of the love and gratitude and pride of the people of Missouri. With it goes the pledge that they will never forget you or fail to show their appreciation of those who fought and suffered and died in this war. God pity a people who could forget.

My tears are my pride as I greet you with triumphant return as my pride as I greet you with tears for those who have not come back. When I close my eyes I see the faces of those who have fallen my sorrow is that which only comes when one who has served together in the field. You know and understand. I cannot say more.

H. C. CLARK.

Tribute of Commander of 2d Army

HQ. SECOND ARMY, L. E. T.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 11.

I. Upon the departure of the 35th Division from the Second Army for service in the United States the Commanding General desires to congratulate the division upon its services in its country in France. Organized and trained in the United States, it received a special training with the British Army in France, beginning in June, 1918. In July it occupied the GERARDMER sector with the French, and it was there, against successful odds, that the HILSENSTREIT and the BATTLE of the MONTREAL WOODS AND EXERJUNT. It was there that the division, with whom it was serving, in the HILSENSTREIT action it covered and protected effectively a tremendous front.

In September the division landed upon the First American Army during its operations in the ST. MIHEL sector. In the end of September the division attacked as part of the First Army in the VERDUN-ARGONNE battle. It stormed and took LAQUELLES HILL and broke the GERMAN line. It was there that the German defensive line, and it afterwards took the formidable position near CHÉLY, VARENNES, CHARPENTRY and BALUNY, and afterwards MONTREAL WOODS AND EXERJUNT. It remained in the battle five days, executing five separate attacks and losing over 5,000 officers and men. The Commanding General of the First Army commended the division for its fighting spirit.

During this five days the division was opposed by some of the best divisions of the German Army, and from them captured over 1,000 officers and men, and large quantities of arms and munitions.

Believed in the great battle of VERDUN-ARGONNE from the fighting line for over the division for the week following. It was placed in the active SOMMEDEUX sector southeast of VERDUN, where for three weeks it harassed the enemy with patrols and raids, and deeply penetrated his lines, unsetting his morale.

Believed again about November 9 from the SOMMEDEUX sector for rest, it went into combat, in preparation for early operations against the enemy in the vicinity of METZ. The arrival of November 11 ended the war.

From the start during a period of trying waiting to date, the division's interest in military duty has not flagged. Its devotion, its ability and its readiness have steadily improved. Upon these the Commanding General of the American Expeditionary Forces has congratulated the division, and he congratulates the Commanding General of the Second Army now wishes to add his congratulations and best wishes.

BY COMMAND OF LIEUT. GEN. BULLARD.

STUART HEINTZELMAN, Chief of Staff.

Cupid Did Not Entirely Yield the Arena to the Steel-Fisted Mars—His Missiles Were Aimed at Hearts and Had no Sting in Them.

In the early days of the war, Cupid seemed to have substituted war with greater severity than did the men of the "Tattered Band." A considerable portion of his missiles have been directed at Camp Douglas, where the champions of the various regiments seem almost at arm's length, and with the effect of the marriage service.

Capt. Jack Miller, Battery H, 122nd Artillery, was among the first to marry. His wedding with Miss Helen Newmann took place shortly after the Battery went into camp. Capt. Raymond French was another artillery officer to "hang out the stars." His bride was Miss Helen Newman.

Capt. Jack Miller, Battery H, 122nd Artillery, was among the first to marry. His wedding with Miss Helen Newmann took place shortly after the Battery went into camp. Capt. Raymond French was another artillery officer to "hang out the stars." His bride was Miss Helen Newman.

Major and Mrs. J. Frank Carmack, who themselves were at the verge of their being considered into service. Officers of the St. Louis soldiers are becoming more and more hearts to marry the girls of their choice upon their return from service. Prominent among them is Capt. Paul Jones Jr. of the 10th Field Signal Battalion, who will marry Miss Helen Watts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Watts, as his bride, the engagement having been announced last week.

The first of the French soldiers to marry of their own, but most of the first boys of the 35th Division had fallen faces and warm hearts waiting time on the Kansas prairie and in the cities and on the farms of Illinois.

It was telling that in the majority of letters home from the members of the 35th, when the topic of women was discussed they expressed their preference for American girls.

Many of them, however, made fast friendships in France and some of them married French girls. It is not so much the possibilities that in the days to come fair French maidens may journey thousands to meet the boys of their choice as it is the fact that in the past they have met in the turmoil of war.

It is just possible that some of these boys of Missouri and Kansas may return to Europe in the days to come and take brides in France.

For the girls of Missouri and Kansas are not assured that their hearts in the hearts of the sons of the 35th Division will have lost none of its high station through their journeyings across the seas.

Many feminine hearts quaked while the men of the 35th were doing their share over there. Many anxious eyes scanned eagerly late and read with deep subjugation the official reports of their activities.

Miss Newman, who formerly was Miss Adeline Smith, the one they received an official notification of the death of her husband, whom she had married while the division was in training in Oklahoma. He had been reported killed in action.

The report seemed authentic enough and was followed later with official details of the funeral services. She was dumb with grief and for days tried to reconcile herself to widowhood.

But Fate, which plays strange tricks, had one more cruel but blessed prank for her.

She received a second notice from the Government to the effect that her husband had been listed among the dead by mistake and that another boy had been identified and buried as his own.

Then she heard from her husband that, during one of the front line engagements, he had been lost from his companions and had been married in a small hole for days. It was during this time that the body of another man had been identified and buried as his. You may imagine the feelings that were experienced by the

WELCOME HOME, HEROES!

¶ Our American Gladiators—we greet you! Not with a passing nod and hand-shake, but with a reverence and awe that shall deepen and grow as the years pass on and the history of your mighty deeds is chronicled.

¶ We envy you. We envy the glorious name you have so sharply etched upon the pages of history. We envy the debt of gratitude owed you by all civilization. We envy the part you so nobly played in forever strengthening humanity's bulwark, "Democracy."

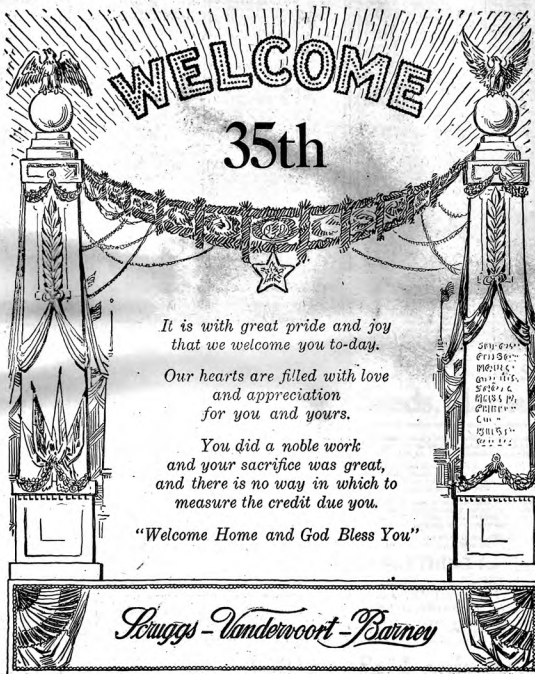

¶ Soon you will again be among us—this time to stay. The hour is happily drawing near when you will lay aside the Khaki and once more don civilian apparel. Soon you will again be taking part in your former pursuits; and the pen and glowshare will again supplant the bayonet and rifle.

¶ Every one of you who left this store to take up arms in that dark hour when our country needed brave men, will find a hearty welcome—and YOUR JOB—awaiting you.

¶ If this institution can be of any assistance to you in your personal transformation from a war to a peace time basis we shall deem it an honor. Our various Men's Apparel Sections have anticipated your return and are prepared to extend a service that is unparalleled elsewhere in the city.

Welcome Home Again, Boys!

WE who perforce remained at home during the stirring months of the past year have missed you and have envied you. For it has been a wonderful experience through which you have passed, fraught not alone with danger and discomfort, but also with unprecedented opportunities for broad, vigorous development and the acquirement of sound, practical information and experience.

We expect great things from you because of this world-experience. We believe you have gained a wider perspective and a keener knowledge of human affairs, the application of which will greatly benefit our country, our State and our city—politically, socially and commercially. If, while abroad, you have learned a better way to do anything—teach us!—show us!

You who have defended our land against Hunnish Kultur—it is now your privilege to help continue our progress along the shining road of honest national effort—to help make this the greatest, busiest, happiest country on God's earth.

THE Story of the Big Part Played by the 89th Division and the 354th Regiment. -:- -:- The Fighting Division Made Up Largely of St. Louis and Missouri Men.

The History of the 89th Division

THE 89th Division found its origin at Camp Funston, Kas., on the 1st of September, 1917. Drafted men from seven States—Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, South Dakota and Arizona—constituted its personnel. Of the various military units composing the division, the 354th Infantry predominated in troops from Missouri and St. Louis. Troops from this city were found also in all the other units.

Buildings in Trier, Germany, Where Units of 89th Division Were Quartered

During the last of March the division headquarters at Camp Gretna, Virginia, received word that the 1st and 2nd divisions were to be sent to France. Incentive was lust, for some of the best men had been with the division since the war. The men endured such longer. The new draft in April sent the pick of the young men to France. The 1st division and other Misamis came, ready to serve Uncle Sam. The majority of the men were picked up by the gun companies of the division. It was almost a sure bet among the men that the 1st division would be sent before the coming September. When word came that the division was to be sent to France, the expected happened. The officers of the various units were called into the officers' mess hall. The men were told that they had been received for an early departure, and within a week the men would be sent to France. The moment had come at last.

On June 4 the men boarded various transport ships. The men were in good comfort and were not greatly encouraged. Crowding had to be stood for. The rules against submarines being in effect, the men were not allowed to go ashore until they arrived at Tillybury Dock.

Dravaston, London. The men stayed for five days in an English "rest camp," the men went by train to Southampton, from which they boarded the H.M.S. Albatross, a small channel steamer. On the outskirts of De Havre, the ship was billeted up in the woods. The men in the English camp.

After seven days in Le Havre, the men moved on. On the move, five times they received their first introduction to the famous "Himmus," 40,000 men, and the destination was St. Niz, a small town in the north of France. Haute Marine, the Lorraine. The trip to St. Niz with the men billeted 40 in a car.

On the morning of the 10th of July I at about 10 o'clock. After a two-hour hike down a pleasant road, the men reached Chalvaines, its new billeted home. At this point started the first of the "Himmus" 40,000 men, 40,000 o'clock, preceded by general "polishing up." A mile hike, carrying machine guns, and the rest of the day's work. The rest of the day was derenade-tossing and maneuvering. After four weeks of this training camp, the men were told that the men were to go was variously guessed. Some thought Toul, others Nancy, others Metz. It was the men arriving there after an all-out march.

Here the units ran into members of the 3d and 3d divisions. They heard of the 1st division and the 1st of the marines at Chateau Thierry. Vesle.

At this time the men had spent their time in small villages between Chaumont and Neuf-chateau, in the Meuse valley. They had heard that they had reached Toul, they had their first sight of a fairly large town. They were told that they were in "anxious waiting." The men partook of the amusements offered by the Y. M. C. A. in some of the better-class restaurants.

Start for Front Lines.

The awaited front came August 1. Instructions were given that the 1st division would go into the trenches within the next five days, relieving the 3d Division.

Activities of 354th Inf.

The 154th Infantry, named the "St. Louis Regiment," of the 89th Division, was the "best regiment in the

This was the honor conferred on the regiment by Gen. Pershing, Commander-in-chief of the overseas forces, in a review of the United States Army in France, following the signing of the armistice.

In the records of history the regiment will not be known as a "Martyr Regiment," for its casualties were comparatively small; it will not be known especially for starting achievements and daring deeds, but for consistent and persevering work, remarkable fighting, and spirited

A Unit of 80th Division.
The regiment was made a unit of the 80th Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, who organized the division August 25, 1917, at Camp Funston, Kas. Col. Americus Mitchell was placed in command of the regiment which was made up largely of St. Louis and Missouri men. Most of the men were furnished in the second draft in the fall of 1917.

Then the "hookies"—for most of the material for the regiment was selected from the "inexperienced snakes"—began to learn the A. B. C.'s of modern warfare. Their course in

Drawn from every walk of life, the desperadoes, which these men adapted themselves to, were a most marvelous. Their spirit under the stress of the first few days of Camp Funston never lessened. They lined up at night would challenge each other to a duel. One, aiming his wooden gun to port with as much venom in his voice as if armed with a real gun, would say:

Those men were trained on a schedule prepared by Maj. Gen. Wood. They all were good fighters, and they were winter, and anyone who has experienced the weather in Kansas is not likely to forget it. Sometimes it does not snow the time; sometimes it does not snow

A large number of the regiment had been selected from the first draft. Some of the men of the first draft were sent to France, but others who went over before the Eighty-ninth. The second draft contingent from Missouri sailed for England.

Sailed For England.

After many months of training the regiment stood ready to go to France and fight. The second draft contingent assembled on June 1, 1918, and, breaking camp, it journeyed to Camp Meade.

The convoys which took the regiment to France sailed from New York City and Halifax for England. Arriving in England, the second contingent was taken from Liverpool to London, to Winchester, to Southampton, to Bournemouth, to Exeter, to the Himsacourt-St. Blais-Fraser.

Following a month's training in France, the division, early in August, set out for the battle front. The division relieved the 22d American Division in the Mamonsauville-Seicheprey-Bouconville sector, just north of Toul. While in this sector, the regiment maintained active daily patrolling and took many prisoners and identifications from the Boche.

The 17th Brigade, which was composed of the "St. Louis" regiment and the "St. Paul" regiment, had established its headquarters at Firsey, just south of Remondville. The headquarters of the brigade had taken over the sector from Remondville to Firsey, the southern side of the Moselle.

The division held this sector until September 12, when it went "over the top" and sent line division in the "St. Mihiel" operation. The division extended from Limay west to two kilometers west of and including Firsey. The division was ordered to place on this day and the brigade was an important aid to the division in carrying out its objectives for that day. By night the division was in the sector was occupying Thicourt.

The next day the division took up a new position, extending from the sector of Thicourt to the sector of Firsey, where it crossed this sector and remained there until September 20. The division had seriously suffered its greatest number of casualties at this point, where the German River was the

After this operation the Filirey sector was organized, and the Pannes sector, from the 41d American Division, and the Limsey sector, from the 42d Division, was taken over by the 49th. It is the advance that followed the "Big Lure" regiment demonstrated remarkable unity and fighting ability. The advance force made up of the 1st and 2nd battalions, led by the entire division during the operation was 15 kilometers and the towns of Remy, Essey, Boullin (Lure)

Believed from the Panama-Pierre-Lucy sector on October 9, 1918, the division moved to the Argonne-Meuse sector, near the Bois de Bantheville. It then went into the line along the Sommeres-Bantheville road, where it relieved the 354 Division.

Between the dates of October 9 and November 1, the Bois de Bantheville was attacked six times by the enemy. The line pushed up to the edge of the Bois and preparations were made for a further advance.

The first five days of November the division making the greatest attack of the war, the 354 Division, against the Kronshilde line. This was the final phase of the Argonne-Meuse offensive. The division at this point broke through everything and drove the enemy back more than a mile. That night brigade headquarters was established at Pommerehne.

The next day the division continued its advance and was in the hot fighting that it experienced. 1911, records the division as having advanced steadily until it reached the west bank of the Meuse, the line extending from opposite Stenay through Laneuville, Cesse, Luxy, Lefflange, to opposite Pouilly. On November 3, the 137th Brigade which had been leading the advance was relieved by the 178th Brigade. The advance, however, then continued in a northeasterly direction until the Meuse River, as stated above, was reached.

The river and towns were patrolled by the infantry while preparations were being made for a further advance to cross the river. On the night of November 10 the crossing of the river was effected by foot bridge and rafts with the result that at 3 a. m. on November 11, when the mistice went into effect, the line extended from east to Stenay and in to east of Autreville on the east of the Meuse.

The order to stop hostilities did not mean the end of the work for the division. The regiment was pressed to service the other regiments of the artillery unit, to help the engineers repairing roads and bridges which had been destroyed by the Germans during retreat. Even abandoned war materiel was collected and, according to the order, sent to the division.

The division was third in the number of prisoners captured, having taken on 5,000. The first captured 10,000 large guns, 415 machine guns, advanced 26 kilometers. They were the line of battle 90 days.

The division insignia is a black "Y" in a black circle. The infantryman wears a blue strip at the lower part of the insignia.

Inc. 4 prisoners was taken, making a total of 253 taken from the unit.

The Honor Winners.
The Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded to two members of Company B, 35th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, November 1, 1918. They are Private James W. Pugh and Sergeant H. B. Hanger. Sergeant Arthur D. Forrest of D Company, 35th Infantry, also was awarded the medal.

Among those of the regiment and other units of the division who were cited for extraordinary heroism in action were:

SERGEANT ROY L. KELLER of Company B—For extraordinary heroism in action near Bouze, France, November 1, 1918. When his company was heavily fired upon by the enemy, exposed ground, exposed ground, he charged the position from the flank, killing several of the enemy and made the capture of the other members of the crew of the machine gun made possible the advance of his company.

Home address, William L. Keller, R. F. D. No. 2, Lewistown, Pa.

SERGEANT ROY C. ANTHONY, Company B—For extraordinary heroism in action near Monmouth, France, November 1, 1918. Leading his platoon gallantly against persistent enemy fire, Sergeant Anthony showed great courage in advancing and breaking down the resistance of the enemy machine guns and artillery.

When twice wounded, he refused to surrender until the company was relieved. His efforts were mainly responsible for the successful capture of all objectives. Home address, Anthony, father, 1410 E. 12th St., St. Louis.

SERGEANT JOHN R. SLAY, Company G—For extraordinary heroism in action near Barriquet, France, November 1, 1918. gunt and snipers. On November 11, Sergeant Keller continued a gallant fight against an enemy machine gun nest after his company commander had been evacuated because of wounds. Home address, Henry Keller, father, Maryville, Mo.

MAJ. J. L. PRATTON, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Barriquet, France, November 2, 1918. Though he had been wounded the day before and was weak from exposure that he could hardly talk, Maj. Prattton remained with his battalion and led it in an assault on enemy machine-gun nests north of the Bois de Barriquet.

He led his personal detachment without artillery support, the machine-gun nests were flanked and the day's objective reached in spite of the address. C. J. Boyd uncle, Columbus, Ky., Boile, Mo.

SERGEANT LEE B. MC DANIEL, Detachment, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action in Bois de Marais, France, October 23, 1918. Sergeant McDaniel led his platoon with great bravery and coolness against severely wounded machine guns until he fell, severely wounded. Home address, C. J. Boyd, uncle, Columbus, Ky.

PRIVATE ROY A. BESS, Company L, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Beaufort, France, November 4, 1918. Although wounded by machine-gun fire, Private Bess refused first aid and continued in the engagement for two days without treatment. Home address, Mrs. Catherine Talbot, mother, Glen Allen, Mo.

FIRST LIEUT. EILEY HERRICK, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Argonne and St. Michel drives, September 23 and November 11, 1918. On the night of September 23, though wounded in the shoulder at the beginning of the attack on Demainville Wood, Lieut.

Herrick continued until his mission was successfully accomplished. On the night of November 3, with eight men, he was the first to cross the Meuse and patrol enemy lines. On the night of November 10, with 20 men, he covered the crossing of his battalion until severely wounded.

Home address, Mrs. Caroline McKen, 1512 24th street, Ottawa, Kan.

SERGEANT RALPH H. SHIMMEL, Company M, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Barriquet, France, November 1-2, 1918. Sergeant Shimmel, although wounded twice, continued in action for two days without receiving medical aid. He established and maintained liaison during those two days in a very efficient manner.

Home address, Forest Shimmel, father, general delivery, North, Kan.

MAJ. HANNA, detached, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Stenay, France, November 1, 1918. Maj. Hanna displayed extreme courage on November 1, by making a dash for the recapture of the town of Pouilly near Stenay.

This town was held in strength by the enemy, with evident indication of determination to prevent a crossing of the River Meuse at this point. He remained in this town over two hours, returning with information of value.

On the night, November 1-2, he was in command of the Second Battalion of the 35th Infantry, and while waiting to cross the River Meuse, Maj. Hanna's battalion was subject to terrific shell fire.

During this period he walked up and down the line, encouraging and steadying his men. Maj. Hanna was killed at the head of his command. Next kin, Mrs. Corinne Esther Hanna, his wife, 2544 East Twenty-eighth street, Kansas City, Mo.

SECOND LIEUT. ALBERT E. BIRCH, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, November 1, 1918. Although suffering from a wound received during the action of November 1, Lieut. Birch refused to go to the rear for treatment, but continued on duty with his platoon throughout a very critical period. He remained on duty during the morning when he was killed. Next of kin, Charles E. Birch, father, Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kan.

FIRST LIEUT. ARTHUR S. CHAMPNEY, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near St. Michel, France, September 13, 1918. Assisting the battalion commander in the early fighting, Lieut. Champney maintained the Italian position, making many journeys himself during heavy fighting.

When the battalion commander had been evacuated, Lieut. Champney assumed command and moved the battalion to its new position. Home address, Mrs. C. Champney, Oxford, Kan.

CORPORAL FRANCIS L. DANIELS, Company H, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Tolly, France, November 2, 1918. When his company had been held up by machine gun and a comrade killed at his side, Corporal Daniels voluntarily advanced alone over an open space for 200 yards to the rear of the machine gun fire into a clump of bushes from which he succeeded in killing the enemy gunner and capturing the gun.

Home address, Mr. B. L. Daniels, mother, R. F. D. No. 8, Smith Center, Mo.

PRIVATE ALOE LEE BUTCHER, Company M, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Bois de Mort Mare, near Planey, France, September 12, 1918. Private Butcher, on duty as a observer of a battalion headquarters, twice volunteered to carry important messages from his battalion commander to company commanders. In so doing he passed through heavy barrage.

SECOND LIEUT. CHARLES R. RANGER, 35th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism near Pouilly, France, November 1-11, 1918. When three of his companies of his battalion had become lost in the darkness during the night of November 1, Lieut. Ranger made five trips through the darkness to find and guide them to the river crossing thus enabling the battalion to fulfill its mission in the Argonne. Home address, J. W. Ranger, Laddonia, Mo.

Welcome Back to Us!

There isn't an American in this town whose heart is not stirred and whose blood is not quickened by a parade of Pershing's Crusaders, or even by a corporal's guard of them, or even by just a lone one of them rubbing shoulders with the crowd! Welcome home! We like the way you went over seas, we like the way you went over the top, we like your modesty now that you are back, and we like most of all the thrill that comes over us when we realize that we are privileged to shake you by the hand and to call you ours! May your luck be good and your life be long in the Republic you fought to save.

Headquarters Company and E Company arrived at Le Mesnil during the night, marching through Bernes and Hancourt. The following morning Capt. Skelly took three trucks and returned to Montigny. Several of the huts had been hit and damaged to a great extent, but Skelly loaded the trucks and got out without injury. For this deed he was awarded the Military Cross.

On March 25, all but a rear guard left la Plaque and marched through Villers-Bretonneux and Corbie to Vecquemont, northeast of Alençon, reaching there about noon. Maj. Burden was commanding the rear guard, which left about dusk, arriving in Vecquemont at midnight. During the night orders were received to send the men to Vandécourt to dig reserve trenches.

This was a 10-mile hike, and it was late in the day when the men got there. They had just been posted when instructions were received that no attempt would be made to hold Vandœuvre, and the men were ordered to Valhervaux. This hiking was a terrible grind for the boys, but they courageously bore up under the hard-

The main body marched direct and reached Valheroux about midnight. The rear guard was collected at Vequemont, and under the leadership of Maj. Burden, marched through Amiens, which was being bombed heavily, and at 1 a. m. the men rested in the open.

For Guard Exhausted.
Routed from their bunk at dawn on March 27, the rear guard began the march across open fields and through hills and woodland to Valbresoaux, reaching there late in the afternoon, where they were joined by the main body under Laird, and were ordered to move on to Besenque. The rear guard, exhausted by the long tramp, was unable to continue with the main body and was left at Valbresoaux. Laird's command reached Besenque just after dark and there received instructions to continue on the Tennesseaux, where they arrived about 8:30 and went into billets.

The following day the engineers were put to work digging trenches and erecting wire for the defense of Beaquesne and Terramont. Several miles of trenches and wire entanglements were constructed, the 12th, continuing at the work until April 11, when they received orders to move to Val de Maison, where they went into a tent camp. The regiment remained at Val de Maison digging trenches until April 17, when orders came to separate into battalions and

In a driving downpour the men trudged through the mud and slop, reaching Flexcourt about 5:20 in the afternoon. The following day they left under orders to proceed to Weiser where they stopped about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

April 20 the engineers were put to work constructing a narrow gauge railway and continued at that work until July 25, when they were moved in two trains to Baccarat, arriving there two days later. They then took up the march to Hadramaut, where

As one of the officers put it in a letter to a St. Louis relative, they fooled around there, drilling and waiting until August 7, when orders were received for Company F and Headquarters Company to operate a light railway about 15 miles in length while Company A moved to a camp near St. Clement, Companies B and C to camps near Moyon. Company D to a camp near Indian Village and Company E to Bertuchamps. The five latter companies set to work immediately to construct extensions to the line Company F and Headquarters Company were operating.

August 25 Headquarters Company and Companies A, B and C moved by train to Rattentout on the Meuse River, six miles south of Verdun, and took over the operation of light railways in that sector, Companies D, E and F were assigned to assist the 21st Engineers in operating light railways in the vicinity of Toul. Company D going to Sorcy, Company E to Belleville and Company F to Menil La Tour. Here the regiment was under the 2d British Army and as one of the men said, were compelled to "wait around getting ready for a drive on Metz." The 12th was at this location when the St. Mihiel push was started and as soon as the Americans had taken that sector the work of building connections across No Man's Land to the German lines in the captured area was begun.

October the Headquarters and 1st Battalion moved to the Toul sector and joined the 2d Battalion and the entire regiment then took over the operation of 200 miles of light railways in that sector, the operation of the railways requiring the combined efforts of every man in the regiment. With more than 2,400 troops from various service battalions under his command, Col. Laird was given orders to look after the construction and maintenance of the railway system to the end that conditions would be as near perfect as possible if an offensive in that direction should be decided upon.

It was on November 6 the 12th established a record, hauling 6,360 tons of ammunition, rations and barbed wire from the railheads to the forward area. A push was scheduled for November 9, and the engineers were ordered to be ready to move out with the infantry. Intense excitement prevailed throughout the regiment, which increased as the day wore on, and the men, as they moved out, sang

The next day passed without any move on the part of the infantry. November 11 the American big guns opened up a barrage, the last of the great war, the fear of which was declared to be so intense the men of the 11th "could hardly hear themselves think." When 11 o'clock came and the firing ceased, the engineers immediately were set to work haul-

"Home, Sweet Home"

"Those boys didn't know what retreat meant. And, pep! Say, every mother's son charged as tho' he was the whole American Army. It was the proudest moment of my life."

Our home bound boys will have a "Welcome" echoed a hundred million times.

Bring out all the good things; the friendly, mellow Velvet—so rich in the flavor and mildness that only Nature's two years' ageing can give, and let their pipes whisper "HOME, SWEET HOME" to them.

Scenes Officially Snapped With 35th in France

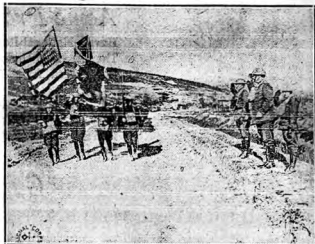

Members of the headquarters detachment find a convenient place to wash their mess kits.

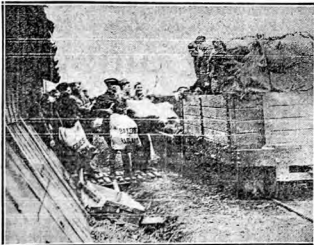

Private Ben H. Young receiving firing data (on the right). Elevating crew of the gun (on the left).—Forest de Sommedieu (Meuse), France, one and a half kilometers east of city, October 29, 1918.

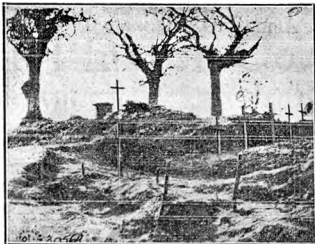

During the idle hours the boys of Headquarters Troops, 35th Division, enjoy the lake. They are seen lined up watching a German police dog swim after sticks.—35th Division, Germany

Gen. Peter E. Traub, commanding 35th Division, reviewing a regiment of the 110th Engineers at Deux Monds.—Deux Monds, aux Boies (Meuse), France, November 16, 1918.

Members of the Quartermaster Corps loading rations on the low row gauge for shipment to the front lines.—Dieuze (Meuse), France, October 25th, 1918.

Make a Job for Every Fighter

The boys are back. They have willingly discharged their duty to their country and to us. Let us, just as willingly, discharge our obligations to them. There is not a single Soldier, Sailor or Marine who has not earned our everlasting gratitude and the privilege of returning to civil life without the dread of unemployment. Let's put them all to work and do it without delay.

Employers: When our fighters went to war they were assured that jobs would be waiting for them upon their return. Keep the faith. Make the supreme effort now to put on every man that you possibly can. Then make room for just one more.

Employees: You are among the first to learn of vacancies occurring in your place of employment. Why not help us to help the boys who are returning from the fighting by phoning us immediately about all the vacancies you know of?

Continued to work until ordered to the rear.

Sgt. First Class W. Quinn, Sanitary Detachment, 125th Infantry, who through his energetic efforts, was most valuable in the work of treating patients on the field and having them littered back, also in procuring dressings and litter and bringing them forward.

Private Everett P. Newham, Dental Assistant, Sanitary Detachment, 125th Infantry, for exceptional gallantry in action during the engagement of September 24th to October 1, 1918, when he was caught missing in action. Private Newham repeatedly went out under heavy shell fire and machine-gun fire in the area immediately behind the advancing front line and administered first aid and assisted men to the dressing station. On the morning of October 1, 1918, he did not return from a call and has since been counted missing in action.

Sgt. Harry Glahn, Sanitary Detachment, 125th Infantry, who was a willing and hard worker throughout the war, and who, although ill himself, he stuck to his post and gave the surgeons very material aid.

Private Israel H. Hinkle, Sanitary Detachment, 125th Infantry, for effective and efficient work under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and who continued to work and administer to the wounded, even when an enemy plane flew over the dressing station, dropped a bomb, killing two men near him.

Private Lester F. Mirman, Sanitary Detachment, 125th Machine-Gun Battalion, for his excellent work under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, and who continued to work and administer to the wounded, even when an enemy plane flew over the dressing station, dropped a bomb, killing two men near him.

Private William E. Sullivan, 2d Battalion, 125th Infantry, showed exceptional bravery in assisting litter bearers in carrying the wounded to the 125th Infantry dressing station, under heavy shell fire.

Private William T. Kane, 110th Ammunition Train, went forward and worked at the division dressing station, among the wounded, without regard to his personal safety.

Private Evan A. Edwards and J. Oliver Bushnell, 14th Infantry, spent for efforts in the front line, wounded, between the front line and the dressing station, under heavy shell-fire, and without regard for their personal safety, encouraged them to action.

Private William L. Hart, 14th Infantry, not only rendered assistance to the wounded, but gallantly struggled together, and by word and example, without regard for his personal safety, encouraged them to action.

Sgt. F. B. Danforth, Headquarters Detachment, orderly to Commanding General 25th Division, for absolute disregard of danger. He, at his own request, was continuously at the side of the Commanding General, and exposed for days and nights, September 28 to October 1. For performing hazardous missions and carrying important dispatches through artillery and machine-gun fire, making the Commanding General to get information and send it to higher headquarters.

Corporal John W. Nandy, Headquarters Detachment, 25th Division, for special reconnaissance and courier duty. He, at the direction of his Commanding General, got through 40 men, took up a position, directed the organization, and remained in charge until relieved.

Corporal Thomas A. Johnson, Company C, 110th Field Signal Battalion, displayed great bravery by being first in communication under heavy shell fire. Joined and advanced with the first wave of an infantry attack, then reported to the advance telephone station for duty.

First Lieut. Thomas C. Brucke, 125th Field Artillery, voluntarily assembled and marched to the front line under shell fire, and turned his detachment to their proper commanding officer.

Sgt. Frank A. Harrison, Company A, 125th Infantry, when his company was temporarily detached, he volunteered in the open and heavy machine-gun fire and carried back wounded comrades, thereby saving them from capture by the enemy.

Private Thomas G. Roberts, Company C, 110th Field Signal Battalion, showed great determination and

Welcome Home, Victorious

35th Division

ST. LOUIS honors you—its Stars fighting the great game of Universal Liberty.

Your work was masterful, clean and according to the rules of decency and civilization. The enemy never had a chance when you entered the field.

It's all over now, boys, and you are home with your family—among true friends and staunch business associates. Welcome!

St. Louis is indeed proud of your heroism. You have won the respect and admiration of mankind, and may your future life enjoy to the fullest good health, happiness and prosperity. This is the sincerest hearty wish of Private Thomas J. Hargel, Company C, 125th Machine Gun Battalion, when his company was wounded, he assumed command of the platoon, and kept his men in action.

Sgt. Rodger L. White, Company C, 125th Field Signal Battalion, during a counter-attack of the enemy and when under extremely heavy shell and machine gun fire, he pursued several different groups of men going to the rear to stop and go into the line of defense, he himself taking a rifle and assisted to repel the attack.

Corporal Wade L. Wood, Company A, 110th Field Signal Battalion, displayed great determination and courage by covering a messenger carrying for him to the front line, through an intense barrage of fire. After delivering his message he carried ammunition and held himself in readiness to assist in repelling the counter-attack.

Private Rufus Carter, 110th Field Signal Battalion, while on duty as an ammunition carrier he was wounded by the enemy. He refused aid from the enemy and continued to assist in the ammunition detail. Private Carter died from the result of his wounds.

Second Lieut. William J. Smith, 125th Field Artillery, voluntarily assembled and marched a group of stragglers to the rear and ordered them to take up a position. He then turned them over to the proper commanding officer.

First Lieut. Cecil E. Tule, Medical Battalion, three successive days, at the front of the divisional sector, he rendered first aid to approximately 100 men and ordered them to take up a position. He then turned them over to the proper commanding officer.

DAY-TO-DAY STORY OF 35TH'S ACTIVITIES

and having it, and invariably killed them.

The 18th was ordered to attack, Vanquish Hill from the western and western side. In other words, it was to make a dash, instead of a frontal attack. It was realized that the hill was hard to take, as the Germans had every advantage, and they did not have a sufficient force to take the hill. It was American strategy and American initiative that won this hill. The difficulty is never dead until he is cold, and he proved it.

The story is told with some private, but was long, was the best of the hill. He saw a machine gun nest. While one arm was stationed to throw a hand grenade into the nest, destroying it.

It was the 18th, and 13th regiments that faced the severe fighting on the hill. He cleared every bunker and captured many prisoners. The prisoners, who proved to be Prisoner Guards, said the German officers took them, and understood their fighting ability. They said they were never under such a fire in the war as did their crew and the machine gun fighting as the Americans put up.

German had concentrated the best troops in this sector. Captured German prisoners told the intelligence officers that they officers had taken them only captured a few thousand of inexperienced American troops. They said that Germany was training every man now to use a machine gun and that was why Germany was so hard to win the war with, rather than by fighting.

The 18th went to the right of the hill, which is a very high hill, to capture considerable area. Its own is a great feat. About this time, a certain amount of machine guns, which had been taken away, through the fog.

Artillery Neutralized

To add to the confusion to artillery, the 18th went to the right of the hill, which is a very high hill, to capture considerable area. Its own is a great feat. About this time, a certain amount of machine guns, which had been taken away, through the fog.

It seemed as if the fog would never clear. At a critical time, as was done as well. Several Prisoner Guard prisoners were taken up. Some were veterans, others were youths. But all were more than six feet. Officers captured proved to be cynical and sarcastic. They refused to talk and tried to assume an superior attitude. To one was captured by the "cub" soldiers in the line.

Finally it became necessary to re-consider, and a small detachment was sent in the direction of the fog, under command of Capt. Reinhold. Scouts were to keep in constant communication with the detachment. In about 15 minutes it was returned, one being an officer. They were all Prisoner Guards.

Artillery Neutralized

From the prisoners it was learned that the fog was strongly fortified and that they were waiting for the advance. Just then machine gun nests were heard all around.

The headquarters company was apparently caught, and was right up against the Himmelsberg line. Prisoners were taken from the line. The machine gun nests, manned by German troops.

The Himmelsberg line, it must be understood, was a brilliant feat and a brilliant line with a labyrinth of tunnels. The Americans had penetrated the German defenses in the fog and were practically surrounded. The Americans did not know this at the time, and in fact, it made little difference.

The fog by this time began to clear, and the machine gun nests were heard all around. The headquarters company was apparently caught, and was right up against the Himmelsberg line. Prisoners were taken from the line. The machine gun nests, manned by German troops.

It seemed as if the Germans knew of the location of the Americans, and a battery immediately started to bombard them. The first few shells killed nearly a score of American Starline guns, also started to open fire. All they could do was to make under cover and wait.

Finally, the fog cleared, and the machine gun nests were heard all around. The headquarters company was apparently caught, and was right up against the Himmelsberg line. Prisoners were taken from the line. The machine gun nests, manned by German troops.

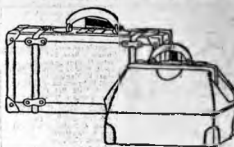

German Troops Brave Well

Headquarters on the left of the 18th, the 15th Infantry company of the 18th was giving an excellent example of its training. The 15th Infantry line, which at this point showed the first division, the machine gun nests, topped by a

and The Autopiano

AWARDED 16 GOLD MEDALS

THERE is no severer test of durability in The Autopiano than use aboard United States warship, where the instrument is exposed to every conceivable climatic condition, to the vagaries of the elements, to hard usage at the hands of hundreds of sailors and to the terrific concussion caused by discharge of the guns.

THE CHOICE OF THE NAVY

The Autopiano has successfully stood all these tests, over two hundred Autopianos having been sold to vessels of the Navy. A partial list of these vessels follows:

From members of various units and led it through a heavy machine-gun fire and continued until the platoon unit it was wounded.

1st Lt. T. H. Ley, commanding 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the morning of September 21, 1918, near Cherpy, France, in the face of intense enemy machine-gun and artillery fire made a personal reconnaissance for machine-gun positions and so skillfully placed the guns of his command, and by his absolute disregard of personal safety, an inspired courage and coolness into the men serving them, that to him led a large advance party for the reduction of this strongly defended locality. On the afternoon of September 21, near Bauley, France, learning of an enemy artillery attack on the positions north of Bauley, he gathered together a force of men from various organizations near Charpertry and led them up to the firing line, establishing them in position. This action had a great moral effect on the men in the front line, enabling them more easily to repulse the enemy attack.

Capt. Geo. H. Wark, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the morning of September 21, 1918, by his coolness, disregard of danger, and ability to command and reform, led a platoon composed of scattered units of infantry and machine-gun units, near Cherpy, France, and by his example inspired into them his own fighting spirit, enabling him to continue the advance into Cherpy.

Capt. Douglas McDonald, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the morning of September 21, 1918, near Chaudron Farm, while making a reconnaissance for intense enemy fire, from artillery and machine-gun positions, and a gap of half a mile in our line, and closed the gap, then reorganized some straggling and disorganized infantry and scouts, and led them forward, putting them into position there, thus preventing a possible infiltration of the enemy forces.

1st Lt. W. R. Peery, Adjutant, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the morning of September 21, 1918, while making a reconnaissance for his battalion commander, voluntarily took charge of a platoon of Company C, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion and went forward in the face of intense machine-gun fire, made reconnaissance of gun positions, led the platoon forward to these positions, and by his example and courage, inspired his men to keep their place in action during a heavy bombardment of enemy artillery and machine-gun fire.

1st Lt. Charles K. Edwards, Company 1, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. Commanded his section with extraordinary courage during the operations near Vouquie, Charpertry, and Bauley, on September 20, 21, and 22, 1918, and during this time, set a magnificent example to his section, exposing himself repeatedly to heavy fire, until killed in action in Montebay Woods, on September 19, 1918.

Major Edwin W. Wiggins, Company A, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. Showed conspicuous and unusual bravery in the fighting near Charpertry, Bauley and Montebay Woods, September 20, 21, 1918, and until his death, the night of September 22-30, 1918, when he led a platoon into action on the ridge north of Bauley during a heavy bombardment. For three days previously, he had exposed himself voluntarily and cheerfully to heavy fire to increase the value of his organization. His activities did much to encourage and inspire the men of his company.

Sergeant Forest L. Spidle, Company 1, 129th Infantry. At about 6 p. m., on September 21, 1918, Corporal Spidle, with three men, was sent out to reconnoiter and outflank a machine-gun post. While endeavoring to perform his duty, he was twice wounded but persisted in going forward to accomplish his task, which, on account of his wounds, he was unable to do.

Sergeant Joseph Thompson, Company D, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. Acted as litter bearer during the advance, September 20, 21, and 22, 1918, from Charpertry. Being the bearer, becoming disorganized on account of intense artillery fire took upon himself the position of Field Sergeant and reorganized the litter service for evacuating the wounded. Although wounded, he continued to set an example by his demeanor.

Private Jesse Bates, Company B, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On September 21, 1918, near Charpertry, when his platoon commander became a casualty, he reorganized the platoon and took up a position of fire at a critical moment of the battle and was killed attending to these duties.

Sergeant Lee Hesse, Company D, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the 21st of September, 1918, near Charpertry, his platoon commander becoming a casualty, he took command of the platoon and throughout the battle showed great bravery and executed an act of great bravery and executed in reorganizing the company when all officers had become casualties. Sergeant George Berry, Company D, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. During the battle of September 21-October 1, 1918, led a platoon, showing great bravery and qualities of leadership. At a critical time of the battle on September 21, 1918, all officers having become casualties, he took command of the company, making disposition to cover the infantry and exercising intelligent command under extreme difficulty.

Second Lieutenant Barney Allen, Company D, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. During the battle beginning September 21, 1918, showed great courage, nerve, and bravery. By his quick perception he immediately reported a fire upon difficult enemy targets. He was severely wounded in the arm considering in advance of the line at a critical point of the battle on September 21, 1918, and died soon after being evacuated.

Private First Class William T. Furbush, Motor Battalion. Headquarters, 11th Ammunition Train, for meritorious conduct on October 3, 1918. While carrying a messenger to Charpertry, he was seriously wounded by enemy shell fire. He immediately made inquiry of other soldiers in the vicinity and, finding none, gave careful message time for the delivery of his message before permitting himself to be evacuated to the hospital.

Sergeant Raymond L. Larkin and Corporal Glenn Vaughn, Company A, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. Their company being held up in the advance fire of the German 77mm. guns, were sent out to reconnoiter and ascertain the first place which was looking on a hill 600 meters north of Yverness. They succeeded in capturing the first place, killing one of the crew and wounding another. The remainder of the crew made their escape.

Private First Class George H. Simpson, Adjutant, 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry. For courage and devotion to duty during the six days battle from September 20 to October 1, 1918. On the morning of September 21, 1918, Simpson voluntarily gathered together and took command of a disorganized platoon and resolutely pushed forward in the attack on the enemy, assisted in the capture and added to the consolidation of the position west of that town, which position was held until the order to retire was given. This advance was made under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and required great courage and resolution to cause a forward movement.

Private Sergeant Percy M. Quinn and Sergeant Charles H. Bartlow, Company B, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the morning of September 21, 1918, collected and formed small parties of men who had been separated from their commands and reported with them to their company commander. Later in the day they assisted in forming lines of defense and advance. They continued on the 27th in charge of the headquarters platoon and on the 28th of September, near 1918, during the advance, they assisted in caring for the wounded administered first aid, in the face of machine-gun fire and heavy bombardment.

Sergeant Charles H. Bartlow, Company B, 129th Machine-Gun Battalion. On the evening of September 21, 1918, when the platoon commander was seriously wounded, took command of the platoon and also carried on the work until relieved of command. The platoon commander being killed, he again assumed command of his platoon and took up a position in the woods north of Charpertry, assuming command of guns in an advanced position and during the remainder of the offensive executed the best of judgment and proved initiative and exceptional coolness.

Private Roy Matthews, Clermont, and Private Lawrence John Stager, 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry.

not been advised of his promotion to Captain, which occurred on September, 1918.

Sergeant Almon L. Reed, 13th Infantry, On September 26 displayed excellent leadership in leading his platoon in a heroic charge against machine gun nests under machine gun and artillery fire near Chappin.

Med. William D. Stepp, 13th Infantry, On September 26 fearlessly and gallantly led his battalion in the face of severe and intense machine gun and artillery fire, advancing against enemy strong points and machine guns, which had held up another battalion for eight hours. In the attack southeast of Verdun he was killed while leading his troops.

Capt. W. W. Taylor, then commanding the 3d Battalion during the action, action remained in close liaison with the infantry front line, exposing himself continuously to enemy shell fire in order to keep his regimental commander in touch with the situation, reorganizing scattered detachments of infantry and by his other command of danger, set an example of courage in other officers and men.

Sergeant, First-Class Frank K. Madden, commanding the Platoon, Company 11th Engineers, repeatedly led his platoon forward to the first line, and by his courageous example inspired his men, and the scattered infantry detachments in his vicinity to organize and hold the line.

Sergeant, First-Class Lyon Kramer, commanding the Platoon, Company 11th Engineers, organized and led an attacking party of seven men against an armored machine-gun emplacement, which was holding up the advance of the infantry, and succeeded in capturing the gun and its crew of eight men. By his courage and determination throughout the action he inspired his men to organize and hold the captured ground.

Sergeant, First-Class Donald C. Parry, exposed himself continuously to enemy shell and machine-gun fire for two days and nights, and by word and example inspired those around him to the full performance of their duty, leading his platoon forward through enemy fire and an intense artillery barrage, and directing the organization of the captured terrain.

Sergeant, First-Class Ramsey C. Hensel, perceiving that his platoon commander had become a casualty, assumed command of his platoon and by his courage and devotion to duty inspired his men with confidence that he was enabled to lead them through thick mortar fire, shell and snipers' fire, and under a heavy barrage to organize and hold the captured ground.

Sergeant, First-Class Hugh Townsend, on the 24th of September, 1918, at the Bois de Fontenay, attacked and captured with the assistance of one private a German machine gun and its crew of seven men. He continued in command of his platoon until September 29, inspiring them by his own courage to the full performance of their duty until wounded severely by an enemy shell.

First Lieut. Harold H. Jones, Medical Corps, attached to the 15th Field Hospital, On the night of September 28-29, 1918, in the Argonne Woods, south of Verdun, he and several enlisted men were wounded. Lieut. Jones, with other elements of danger, passed through the shelled area several times to getting the wounded to cover, caring for their wounds and secured an ambulance to convey them to the hospital.

Capt. Charles A. Lusk, M. C., while with the 12th Infantry, on the night of September 25, 26, supervised the collection and evacuation of the wounded from Chappin Farm, working continuously for hours under heavy enemy fire, and by his courage inspired those about him to the full performance of their duty.

Med. Chas. C. Macdonald, 13th Infantry, until September 28 Postal Agent, 35th Division, learning of the death in action of his son, a First Lieutenant, he was assigned to command a battalion and conducted himself with courage and good judgment, and although 61 years of age, entered great physical hardships with a fortitude and determination that would have done credit to many a younger man.

Sergeant Charles B. Rymer, Company F, 13th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism in action near Vez, France, September 26, 1918. Rymer was a member of a liaison group who worked their way into a mine in advance of their first wave. Surrounded by machine-gun fire, they were forced to take refuge in a trench. Rymer was the only man who was able to reach a clump of woods, where he captured a German officer alone. Assailed by two soldiers, he later killed an enemy machine-gunner and took 21 prisoners. Home address, Robert L. Rymer, father, 4211 Page avenue, St. Louis.

Sergeant Joseph J. Coff, Company F, 13th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism in action near Vez, France, September 26, 1918. Rymer was a member of a liaison group who worked their way into a mine in advance of their first wave. Surrounded by machine-gun fire, Rymer was accompanied by two other soldiers, offered two machine-guns and took 21 prisoners. Seriously wounded, he persisted in remaining in the fight until exhausted. Home address, Julian Coff brother, 2922 Fair avenue, St. Louis.

Sergeant, First-Class, Harold O. Benton, 13th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism in action near Metz-lez-Verdun, France, September 26, 1918. When the advance of his company had been checked and forced back into the woods, Lieut. Benton, although himself wounded, went into the open field, and under machine-gun fire rescued two wounded comrades.

First Lieut. Edward H. Price, 13th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism in action near Metz-lez-Verdun, France, September 26, 1918. At the head of his company, Lieut. Price charged and defended the southeastern approach to Chappin, and was the first to enter the town. With his company of about 18 men he captured four guns and 124 prisoners. On the following day he led his men through direct artillery fire, with only two casualties, due to his destruction of command. Later he was seriously wounded but continued to lead his company until physical exhaustion prevented. Home address, E. Coleman Price, father, 300 McPherson avenue, St. Louis.

First Sergeant John H. Fling, Company I, 13th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism in action near Chappin, France, September 26 and 27, 1918. When his company commander was killed and his company left without orders, Sergeant Fling took command of the company, successfully withdrew it from the midst of machine-gun fire, reorganized it and continued its advance. WELCOME HOME

TO ALL those brave sons of America who so freely and unselfishly turned their backs upon business opportunities and the tender ties of home life and marched toward the rising sun to join the forces arrayed against the studied viciousness and barbarism of the monarch of a deluded nation—

Who went to foreign lands and suffered the trials and torments of trench life in the cause of Humanity, while we lived in comfort, in the safety and security of our own loved America—

Who risked their limbs and lives that the world might be transformed from a scene of chaos and strife to one of everlasting peace and harmony, and that the brotherhood of man might become a reality—

In the name of Freedom, Justice and Humanity, we greet you and give you welcome.

Welcome to the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Welcome to your "old home town!"

Welcome to your former position in business life!

Orange-le-Comte and the woods east of Beauchamp. On the night September 26-27, the division relieved the 73d Division (French) in the 73d Division remounted in place, the 6th Brigade holding the line in two battalions, each with a machine gun company attached and one battalion and machine gun company in reserve. This formation was maintained until the attack on September 26.

Chap. II—Sept. 26—Oct. 1.

SITUATION AT THE BEGINNING OF THE OPERATION.

(a) Boundaries of the Sector:

Right (east)—Vauquois (incl.), Very, Esclafontaine (excl.), Somme (incl.), St. Georges, Imcourt.

(b) Formations adopted for the attack:

(1) INFANTRY.

Column of brigade, 69th Brigade leading. Within brigades, regiments side by side, each with one battalion in front line, one battalion in support and one battalion in reserve. One battalion of rear brigade was attached to leading brigade to "mop up" Vauquois Hill and Bois de Roussignol, two companies being assigned to each place.

(2) ARTILLERY.

The 40th Field Artillery Brigade was re-enforced by the 215th R. A. C., 292d R. A. L., 217th R. A. L. and 41st R. A. L. Organizations were echeloned in depth, the positions being well forward. One battery of light artillery was attached to the front line to be used on forward guns.

(3) MACHINE GUNS.

Four machine gun companies were attached to the front line battalions, two companies were in rear of support line, ready to take positions on Cote 229, one battalion and one company in position on Cote 232, Mamelle Blaise and La Blaise.

(4) ENGINEERS.

One company was assigned to the leading brigade for use in cutting wires, two platoons were assigned to accompany the mopping-up battalion and one company (less one platoon) was assigned to assist the advance of the tanks.

(5) TANKS.

The 34th Tank Battalion (less one company) was distributed along the front, ready to advance.

(6) AVIATION.

The 1st Aero Squadron was attached to the 25th Division, one plane being constantly over the division sector.

7.3. AEROSTATION. The 2d Balloon Company was assigned to the division for all aeration duties.

8.1. CANALRY. One squadron, 2d Cavalry, was assigned to the division for all canal duties.

"The Cardinals"

From the very day that you were received into the army until the day you are mustered out you will have been wearing shoes of solid leather construction, made so by the order of the Government.

Why solid leather?

Simply because an investigation has shown that "It takes leather to stand weather"—to stand strain, to stand up at all under the hard usage that human walking gives to shoes.

The same principle applies to civilian as well as army shoes, and when you are looking about for shoes to replace those which the Government has been furnishing you, you cannot do better than to insist upon the trade-mark which insures you a shoe of ALL-LEATHER construction.

We have made thousands upon thousands of pairs for the army and we are making a full line of ALL-LEATHER constructed shoes for civilians in every walk of life.

Insist upon this trade-mark when you buy your civilian shoes.

Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co.

This was our message to the Ely & Walker men who were in the service when the armistice was signed, which still holds good:

"In this hour of Victory and Rejoicing, let me convey to you the heartfelt appreciation of our company and myself for the service you have rendered for the cause of Freedom and Justice, and I want you to know that when you return you will find the door wide open, a warm and hearty welcome and YOUR OLD POSITION WITH OUR COMPANY AWAITING YOU.

Most sincerely yours,
D. R. CALHOUN, President."

Heroes? — Yes! but what of You?

It is splendid to see fighting men on parade. We thrill—and cheer and clap. For the moment we seem to realize, and to appreciate, the tremendous sacrifices these men have made for us.

Let it not be said that we are only too ready to forget; that ours is a hollow tribute, no more material than a welcoming shout, a burst of applause.

For there are jobs to be found—and Bonds to be bought. These are the real, tangible forms of approbation; permanent and lasting, definite and enduring.

It is so easy to merely cry Welcome. Unfortunately, to-day's hero is unsung and forgotten to-morrow.

May every one of us take home the obligation, and extend these real men the reward of a waiting occupation and Bonds bought to the limit of our possibilities.

Because—thank God—it is Victory.
