For distinguishing themselves by acts of heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 24 March 1945. A friendly plane crashed in the midst of a munition dump. Although flames from the burning plane had already set fire to a number of boxes containing high explosives, the above named enlisted men fully realizing the peril of the situation voluntarily risked their lives in connection with rescuing seven members of the crew and removing them to safety and in trying to control the flames which, a short time later, set off hundreds of pounds of explosives. The heroism and courage of these individuals reflect much credit upon themselves and uphold the highest traditions of the military service.
