Technician Fifth Grade Johnnie McCullough, 38043459, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 2 March 1945. During the course of bitter fighting near * * *, Corporal McCullough braved intense enemy fire to traverse open terrain and rescue two severely wounded soldiers. He was killed in action later in the day as he was assisting an infantryman in setting up a machine gun. Corporal McCullough's personal bravery and utter disregard for personal safety exemplify the high traditions of the military service. Entered military service from Texas.

II -- SILVER STAR. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Memorandum 34, Headquarters Ninth United States Army, 8 September 1944, as amended, a Silver Star is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men:

Captain Barnaby C Keeney, 01041809 (then first lieutenant), Coast Artillery Corps, United States Army, for gallantry in action in Holland and Germany from 2 to 6 March 1945. Captain Keeney, commanding * * *, accompanied leading elements of an infantry-armor task force which moved swiftly through Siegfried defenses before the * * * River. Frequently advancing on foot and under fire, he obtained information of enemy disposition through skillful interrogation of civilians and prisoners of war. When he learned that a building on the highway east of * * * was serving as a German forward observation post, he moved forward under fire, accompanied by three infantrymen, and captured nine Germans, including two artillery observers. His intrepidity, zealous devotion to duty and skillful questioning immeasurably aided in the swift advance of his unit to the * * * River. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

First Lieutenant Henry L Peterson, 01018916, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 27 February 1945. When enemy action destroyed the communications of his control tank, Lieutenant Peterson, commanding an attacking tank platoon, jumped to the ground, and in the face of withering enemy fire, ran across open terrain to a position from which he directed the maneuvering of his armored unit by hand and arm signals. He remained at his precarious post even after he had been wounded, and was largely responsible for the successful accomplishment of his unit's mission. His intrepid devotion to duty is in accord with the best traditions of the Army. Entered military service from Washington.

First Lieutenant Edgar T Snipes Jr, 01327675 (then second lieutenant), Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 8 March 1945. When his platoon, then spearheading an attack, was halted in an open field by enemy machine gun fire, Lieutenant Snipes moved about to draw fire upon himself, quickly located the hostile weapon, climbed upon a tank and in the face of machine gun, bazooka, and rifle grenade fire, adjusted the tank's fire until the enemy machine gun position was eliminated. He then led an armor-infantry team in the capture of * * *, which was fiercely defended by almost every type of enemy weapon, killing thirty-two and capturing one hundred of the enemy. His gallant actions reflect the highest credit upon his character as an officer. Entered military service from Illinois.

First Lieutenant James M Unland, 0540236, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 6 March 1945. When his men, part of whom were riding tanks, encountered heavy enemy machine gun, rifle and mortar fire during an attack, Lieutenant Unland, commanding Company B, * * * Infantry, ordered all troops except those in the lead tank to seek cover. He then ran three hundred yards through enemy fire, mounted the lead tank and directed the combined infantry-armored force from his exposed position in a successful assault on a fortified building. His daring and resourceful leadership resulted in the capture of twelve prisoners, two light machine guns, a mortar and eight rifles, and undoubtedly prevented numerous casualties. Entered military service from Illinois.

Technical Sergeant Dan C Yercich, 20607350, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 8 March 1945. When his platoon was pinned to the ground by enemy machine gun fire in open terrain, and two of his comrades were wounded by mortar shells, Sergeant Yercich immediately rushed to one of the wounded soldiers and carried him to the cover of a ditch seventy-five yards away, where he was given immediate treatment and evacuated. Sergeant Yercich's gallant loyalty to a comrade-in-arms saved the wounded man from further injury and is in accord with the best Army traditions. Entered military service from Illinois.

Sergeant James N Mines, 20621872, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 4 March 1945. As Sergeant Mines, commanding the lead tank, led an attack column into the town of * * *, his tank was knocked out by fire from a concealed antitank gun. Undaunted, he remained in the tank and directed fire which silenced the enemy weapon, then dismounted and, despite sniper fire, accompanied his platoon leader in a reconnaissance into the town. Upon returning to the column he assumed command of another tank, re-entered the town, and succeeded in destroying several enemy gun positions before he was wounded by enemy fire. Despite his wounds he continued to direct fire against the enemy until ordered to take cover. Sergeant Mines' heroic devotion to duty reflects the highest credit upon himself, his unit, and the military service. Entered military service from Illinois.

Technician Fifth Grade Wingate W Harris, 34600040, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 7 March 1945. When unidentified rifle fire from the left flank threatened his unit during an attack, Corporal Harris, looking through field glasses, thought he recognized friendly troops preparing to fire on his position with a heavy machine gun, but was not certain as to their identity. He dashed across an open field under enemy artillery and mortar fire only to be greeted by a hail of bullets. Diving into a hole and removing his field jacket to reveal an air panel sewn on the inside, he induced the friendly troops to hold their fire and informed them of his unit's position, thereby saving his company many casualties. His intrepid and resourceful actions reflect high credit upon his character as a soldier. Entered military service from North Carolina.

Private First Class Herman E Hutton, 33655925, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 8 March 1945. When his platoon was pinned to the ground by enemy machine gun fire in open terrain, and two of his comrades were wounded by mortar shells, Private Hutton immediately rushed to one of the wounded soldiers and carried him to the cover of a ditch seventy-five yards away, where he was given immediate treatment and evacuated. Private Hutton's gallant loyalty to a comrade-in-arms saved the wounded man from further injury and is in accord with the best Army traditions. Entered military service from Virginia.

Private First Class Arthur T Malicoat, 37505340, Medical Department, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, Germany on 7 March 1945. When five men were wounded by enemy machine gun fire as they moved across open ground, Private Malicoat, an aid man, went forward although the enemy failed to recognize his red cross insignia and continued to fire into the area, administered first aid to his comrades and evacuated them to safety. His gallantry and daring saved the lives of two of his fellow soldiers and are in accord with the best traditions of the Army Medical Department. Entered military service from Missouri.

Private James A Ballard, 38356681, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, France on 10 and 11 October 1944. Assuming command of his platoon after the platoon leader and sergeant had been evacuated, Private Ballard reorganized his unit under heavy fire, and in the face of a counterattack by five enemy tanks. On the following day, Private Ballard traversed thirty yards of open terrain during a renewed assault by hostile armor, to reach a seriously wounded comrade who had been left in a precarious position, administered first aid, and evacuated the soldier to a place of cover. He was wounded by a sniper bullet as he was returning from this mission. His inspiring leadership was largely responsible for the success of his unit, and reflects high credit upon his character as a soldier. Entered military service from Arkansas.

III -- BRONZE STAR MEDAL. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Memorandum 34, Headquarters Ninth United States Army, 8 September 1944, as amended, a Bronze Star Medal is awarded, posthumously, to the following officer and enlisted man:

First Lieutenant Arthur E Solow, 01017083, Infantry, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * * , Germany on 6 March 1945. While leading his company in an attack toward the town of * * * , Lieutenant Solow saw an officer fall wounded in an open field. Without hesitation he climbed out of his tank and, disregarding the concentrations of small arms fire which swept the area, made his way to the wounded officer and started to drag him from the field when the wounded man was killed by enemy fire. Lieutenant Solow was killed in action later in the day. His heroic action under fire honors his character as an officer. Entered military service from North Dakota.

Private First Class Francis R Keohan, 31429802, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * * , Germany on 4 March 1945. As a member of a four-man patrol, Private Keohan advanced under direct enemy tank and sniper fire on a mission to reconnoiter a bridge across a stream at * * * . In order to gain its objective in minimum time, the group by-passed a group of houses known to be occupied by enemy troops. This caused enemy soldiers to fire at the patrol from the rear, killing Private Keohan. The aggressive daring and dogged determination which he had displayed up to the moment of his death inspired his comrades to the successful completion of their mission. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

IV -- BRONZE STAR MEDAL. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Memorandum 34, Headquarters Ninth United States Army, 8 September 1944, as amended, a Bronze Star Medal is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men:

When one of his tanks was set afire by an enemy shell after it had been stopped by antitank mines, which had torn off both treads and stunned the crew, Captain Abernathy, commanding the tanks in an infantry-armor attack, dashed across an open field under enemy artillery and small arms fire and mounted the blazing vehicle. After pulling the handles of several fire extinguishers which failed to operate, he climbed down to the driver's seat to seek another extinguisher, although smoke was already pouring from the turret. At that moment, further explosions occurred. Captain Abernathy was able to escape with only slight injuries as the tank became a blazing inferno. His daring, though unsuccessful, efforts to save a valuable tank reflect credit upon his character as an officer. Entered military service from New Jersey.
