I -- SILVER STAR (Posthumous Award). Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September, 1943, as amended, and Circular 6, Headquarters Third United States Army, 26 April 1944, a Silver Star is awarded, posthumously, to the following officer:

Captain Thomas A Swanson, 0351462, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the vicinity of * * * , Normandy, France, 12 July 1944. Although he was aware of the fact that the enemy had been extremely active in the area, he voluntarily formed a group of officers and men to enter a position to be covered by his battalion. Although Captain Swanson met his death as a result, his courageous action facilitated the movement of troops into the area and allowed Company E, * * * Infantry, to move into position by using a different route and to accomplish its mission without loss. Captain Swanson's gallant action and his devotion to duty and to his men, reflect the highest credit on the military service. Entered military service from Oregon.

II -- SILVER STAR. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Circular 6, Headquarters Third United States Army, 26 April 1944, a Silver Star is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men of this command:

Captain Harry C Simpson, 01302536 (then first lieutenant), Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the vicinity of * * * , France, on 12 August 1944. As Company Commander of Company C, * * * Infantry, he personally led his company in a successful attack against strongly defended enemy positions on Hill Number 310. He organized the defense of the hill, then called for and directed artillery fire on the retreating Germans. The enemy launched a heavy counterattack, and Captain Simpson skillfully led his company in a limited withdrawal, maintaining complete control of the situation at all times. When his battalion was relieved and directed to proceed to an assembly area, he led his company and a detachment from another company through more than a mile of enemy territory without casualties. The dynamic and inspiring leadership of Captain Simpson, his devotion to duty, resourcefulness and initiative, were responsible for inflicting many casualties upon the enemy while holding losses among his troops to a minimum. Entered military service from Montana.

First Lieutenant Howard J Moran, 01290285, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the vicinity of * * * , Normandy, France, 13 July 1944. With communication with the battalion command post out, friendly tanks fired upon the enemy in such manner as to endanger the troops of the second battalion. Through a barrage of enemy artillery and mortar fire, Lieutenant Moran crossed an open field for nearly two hundred yards, climbed on the side of one of the tanks and succeeded in obtaining the attention of the tank commander. This daring action caused the tanks to cease their fire, contact with the battalion commander was established, and the tank fire properly directed. Lieutenant Moran's gallantry, devotion to duty, his courage and disregard for personal safety, spared many casualties in his battalion and contributed greatly to the successful accomplishment of the battalion mission. Entered military service from New York.

Second Lieutenant Charles W Bell, 0533411, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the * * * sector, Normandy, France, on 2 August 1944. While reconnoitering for a river crossing in advance of his platoon, a group of enemy soldiers detrucked from a half-track vehicle within 25 yards of his position. Lieutenant Bell opened fire with his carbine, killing two and wounding at least one of the enemy. When the enemy returned fire and charged with fixed bayonets, Lieutenant Bell jumped into the river and, swimming on his back, continued to fire at the enemy to cover withdrawal of his scouts. After reaching the safety of the opposite bank and informing his company commander of the situation, he returned to his platoon which had become pinned down by heavy fire from a concealed enemy machine gun emplacement, and, repeatedly exposing himself to enemy fire, skillfully led the platoon from the danger area. The gallant actions of Lieutenant Bell, his resourcefulness, coolness, and utter disregard for personal safety, reflect high credit upon his character as an officer and are in accord with the high traditions of the Army. Entered military service from Texas.

Sergeant James J Rispoli, 32607891 (then private first class), Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the vicinity of * * *, France, on 31 July 1944. Sergeant Rispoli and another enlisted man left the comparative safety of a ditch and crawled to the assistance of several seriously wounded soldiers lying in an exposed position on a road. Sergeant Rispoli carried first one then another of his wounded comrades to an aid station, a distance of about three hundred yards across an open field swept by enemy machine gun fire. The courageous actions of Sergeant Rispoli, who placed the welfare of his comrades-in-arms above his personal safety, resulted in saving two soldiers from further wounds and possible death, and reflect the highest credit upon his character as a soldier. Entered military service from New Jersey.

Technician Fourth Grade Vernon R Mattson, 37170328 (then technician fifth grade), Cavalry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the * * * sector, France, on 8 August 1944. Technician Mattson was serving as radio operator in an armored car when his platoon, acting as reconnaissance and screening force for the * * * Infantry, was counterattacked from the left flank by strong enemy forces. Although directed to withdraw, Technician Mattson elected to remain behind the enemy lines, and for about 15 hours relayed vital information of enemy movements. The gallant and courageous actions of Technician Mattson enabled his platoon to accomplish its assigned mission and, as a result, the powerful enemy counterattack was repulsed. Entered military service from Minnesota.

Private First Class Edward J Murphy, 12209680, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the vicinity of * * *, France, 22 August 1944. During an engagement with the enemy, Private Murphy went forward, in the face of heavy machine gun and mortar fire, to rescue a wounded comrade. Rendering first aid to the wounded man, Private Murphy carried the man, much larger than himself, a distance of seventy-five yards back to his own lines. He then learned that an order to withdraw had been issued, whereupon he carried the wounded man over hilly terrain and through hedgerows for another three hundred yards, where he evacuated the wounded man to the medical detachment for further treatment. Because of the gallant action of Private Murphy and his loyalty to a comrade, a wounded man was spared further injury and possible death. Entered military service from New York.

Private First Class Arthur M Nivison, 36874249, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in the vicinity of * * *, France, 2 August 1944. Private Nivison, a radio operator, was slightly injured when an enemy artillery shell struck within ten feet of his battalion observation post. Despite his injury, he moved his radio to a new position under enemy mortar fire, returned to assist in evacuating the wounded, after which he maintained continuous operation of his radio for seven hours until ordered to the battalion aid station. The gallantry in action devotion to duty and efficiency of Private Nivison contributed greatly to the successful accomplishment of his battalion's mission. Entered military service from Michigan.
