I -- SILVER STAR. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Circular 6, Headquarters Third United States Army, 26 April 1944, a Silver Star is awarded, posthumously, to the following enlisted man:

Private First Class Louie T Bruin, 35679772, Field Artillery, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * * , France on 8 December 1944. While serving as a radio operator with a forward observer party, Private Bruin noticed that the officer acting as forward observer had been wounded and was lying in an exposed position. Disregarding intense enemy fire, he left a sheltered location and attempted to come to the rescue of this officer, but was seriously wounded as he made his way forward. Despite his condition, Private Bruin refused medical aid and urged his comrades to proceed with the advancing infantry. He died of wounds received in this action. Private Bruin's unselfish loyalty to a wounded officer and zeal for the accomplishment of his unit's mission even at the cost of his own life, inspired the men about him and are in accord with the best traditions of the Army. Entered military service from Ohio.

II -- SILVER STAR. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Circular 6, Headquarters Third United States Army, 26 April 1944, a Silver Star is awarded to the following officer and enlisted men of this command:

First Lieutenant Daniel C Lawler, 0400293, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * * , Luxembourg on 4 January 1945. Lieutenant Lawler, a mortar section leader, was serving as forward mortar observer for Company H, * * * Infantry, in the attack against * * * . Company F followed tanks in the attack, but the armored vehicles when subjected to intense enemy mortar and rocket-launcher fire, withdrew in order to lessen the danger of this fire to the rifle troops. Observing the tanks in the act of withdrawing, a leaderless platoon of Company F was about to do the same when Lieutenant Lawler, realizing the platoon's situation, left his position of comparative safety and, under enemy machine gun fire, crossed to the head of the platoon and led it to its objective in the woods. The platoon, under his leadership, destroyed three enemy machine gun positions and three rocket-launcher positions. Lieutenant Lawler personally took four prisoners. After leading the platoon to its objective, he returned to his forward observation post and continued the direction of accurate mortar fire in support of the attacking elements. The resourcefulness and aggressive leadership of Lieutenant Lawler, his quick thinking and disregard for personal safety, constitute such gallantry in action as to be in accord with military tradition. Entered military service from New York.

Technical Sergeant Maurice J Roper, 20726606, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * * , France on 14 December 1944. After Company I, * * * Infantry, had crossed the * * * River into * * * , its further advance was impeded by intense enemy small arms fire from positions in three connecting houses on the river bank. Sergeant Roper, a platoon sergeant, volunteered to go forward and establish an observation post from which to direct mortar fire upon the enemy positions. He made his way under heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire to a house some three hundred yards from the enemy small arms positions, and from that point directed mortar fire upon the houses occupied by the enemy. Although enemy artillery struck his observation post several times, ripping huge pieces of masonry from the building, Sergeant Roper remained at his position, calling accurate mortar fire that ultimately destroyed the three enemy positions and enabled Company I to advance, and taking fifty-three prisoners who were dazed by the accuracy and intensity of Sergeant Roper's mortar fire. The courage, tenacity of purpose, devotion to duty and disregard for personal safety displayed by Sergeant Roper are such gallantry in action as to be in accord with military tradition. Entered military service from Kansas.

Sergeant Robert E Hall, 35735386, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action near * * *, France on 13 and 14 December 1944. When his squad was forced to take cover because of intense enemy machine gun and small arms fire, Sergeant Hall placed his Browning Automatic Rifleman at a point flanking the enemy emplacements, returned to his squad, and at a prearranged signal, led his men in a successful assault upon the German positions, while the Browning Automatic Rifleman opened simultaneous fire from a different direction. Sergeant Hall then forged ahead with his men toward * * *, and by skillful employment of the squad's fire power, succeeded in driving the enemy from a section of the town. On the following day, he led his squad in further advances against the German defenders, personally destroying several strongpoints with rifle grenades before he was wounded and evacuated. It was as a direct result of the inspiring and resourceful leadership of Sergeant Hall that Company L, * * * Infantry, was able to attain its objective. Sergeant Hall's singular courage, determination and devotion to duty are in accord with the best traditions of the United States Army. Entered military service from West Virginia.

III -- BRONZE STAR MEDAL. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Circular 6, Headquarters Third United States Army, 26 April 1944, a Bronze Star Medal is awarded, posthumously, to the following enlisted man:

Corporal Samuel P Dunn, 37221710, Field Artillery, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * *, France on 8 December 1944. Corporal Dunn was a member of an artillery observer party advancing with forward infantry elements across the * * * River toward * * * when the group encountered heavy small arms fire which wounded the officer and his radio operator. Corporal Dunn immediately assumed the responsibilities of a forward observer, continued forward in the face of intense fire, and established an observation post within full view of the enemy. He had set up a radio and was adjusting artillery fire when he suffered a fatal wound. Corporal Dunn's initiative, judgment, and heroic zeal for the accomplishment of his mission reflect credit upon his character and training as a soldier. Entered military service from Missouri.

IV -- BRONZE STAR MEDAL. Pursuant to authority contained in AR 600-45, dated 22 September 1943, as amended, and Circular 6, Headquarters Third United States Army, 26 April 1944, a Bronze Star Medal is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men of this command:

Lieutenant Colonel Herman F Schuster, 0366569 (then major), Field Artillery, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * *, Germany on 14 December 1944. After elements of the * * * Infantry had crossed the * * * River, during a period when strong enemy resistance was encountered and artillery support was urgently needed to relieve the enemy pressure, Colonel Schuster crossed the river into * * * and, despite the intensity of the enemy fire, personally reconnoitered for positions for his battery. The courageous actions of Colonel Schuster and his zeal for the success of the mission at hand, contributed materially to the repelling of the enemy counterattack. Entered military service from Kansas.

Major Forrest H Hagenbush, 0248152, Field Artillery, United States Army, for meritorious service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States in France and Belgium from 9 July to 31 December 1944. Entered military service from Kansas.

First Lieutenant Harvey L Hutton, 01290756, Infantry, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * *, Belgium on 2 January 1945. After a machine gun platoon had become disorganized during an enemy counterattack in the vicinity of * * *, Lieutenant Hutton, Executive Officer of Company M, * * * Infantry, made his way across exposed terrain during the height of the battle, and without thought for his personal safety, reorganized the platoon in spite of a heavy enemy mortar barrage. He then instructed his men to support defending rifle troops by overhead fire. So effective was this supporting fire that the enemy was forced to withdraw and our rifle units were able to reoccupy their defensive positions. Lieutenant Hutton's great presence of mind and calm leadership in the face of heavy enemy fire were instrumental in repelling the German assault and reflect credit upon his character and training as an officer. Entered military service from Illinois.

First Lieutenant Raymond W Mody, 01310478, Infantry, United States Army, for meritorious service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States in France, Germany, and Luxembourg from 11 July 1944 to 10 January 1945. Entered military service from Michigan.

Reserve units of Company A, * * * Infantry, were prevented from following the assault wave across an open field by enemy machine gun and small arms fire emanating from a gravel pit on the right flank. Lieutenant Williams, a weapons platoon leader, realized that smoke was needed to cover the advance, and that the SCR 300 radio, the only means of communication with the supporting artillery, had been carried across the field with the assault wave. Without hesitation, and placing the success of the mission at hand above any consideration for personal safety, Lieutenant Williams, accompanied by an enlisted man, dashed across the open field under a hail of enemy fire, reached the radio, and directed the artillery to lay smoke over the field, thereby enabling the remainder of the company to go forward without casualties. Lieutenant Williams' courageous initiative under fire exemplifies the high traditions of the military service. Entered military service from Oklahoma.

Sergeant Chester Majewski, 31457098 (then private first class), Infantry, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States in Germany on 13 December 1944. After advance elements of the * * * Infantry had crossed to the bridgehead established in the vicinity of * * * on the hostile side of the * * * River, in the dense blackness of the night three guides, who were dispatched to lead additional troops to designated positions, became casualties as the result of enemy action. Sergeant Majewski, a rifleman, although realizing the fate of the other three men and the hazards of the assignment, volunteered to serve as a guide. During the night he made three trips to the river bank and led the additional troops forward, despite the enemy activity intent upon reducing the American bridgehead. Sergeant Majewski's zeal for the success of the mission at hand, his courage and disregard for personal safety reflect credit upon his character as a soldier. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

Technician Fourth Grade Lester Imel, 37070334, Quartermaster Corps, United States Army, for meritorious service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States in France and Belgium from 20 October 1944 to 10 January 1945. Entered military service from Kansas.

For a period of two days, Technician Lundmark and his companions continued their mission, evacuating a total of sixty-one men, braving enemy fire of such intensity that our own infantrymen were unable to move forward, and in the face of treacherous sniper activity. Technician Lundmark's valiant actions undoubtedly resulted in the saving of many lives and reflect credit upon his character as a soldier and upon the Medical Department of the Army. Entered military service from Minnesota.

Second Lieutenant Samuel E Owen, 01999972, Infantry, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * * , France on 16 December 1944. When the advance of Companies I, K and L, * * * Infantry, was impeded by intense enemy fire of all types, Lieutenant Owen, from the second story of a flour mill which he used as an observation post, was serving as forward observer. His position was the target for artillery, mortar and sniper fire by a determined enemy, but with disregard for personal safety, he remained at his position to direct his fire. Observing what he believed to be an enemy observation post about five hundred yards to his left front, he directed mortar fire upon it until six of the enemy left the position beneath a white flag and surrendered to our troops, admitting that the accuracy of the mortar fire had forced them from their position. The neutralizing of this enemy position materially lessened the enemy fire and enabled the three units to continue their advance. Lieutenant Owen's courage, tenacity of purpose and disregard for personal safety reflect credit upon his character as an officer. Entered military service from Kansas.

Technician Fifth Grade Clarence E Watkins, 20721339, Medical Department, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * * , Germany on 13 and 14 December 1944. Second Lieutenant Frank M Swanson, 02000041 (then technical sergeant), Infantry, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States near * * * Belgium on 31 December 1944. On the night of 31 December, Lieutenant Swanson directed the operations of a heavy machine gun platoon in protecting a vital road. In an effort to regain control of the road, a strong enemy force of riflemen approached to a point from which they could fire upon traffic upon the road. Realizing the intention of the enemy, Lieutenant Swanson made his way to the command post and obtained a radio, after which he maneuvered himself well forward into an area subjected to heavy enemy mortar fire. There he observed the enemy entrenching themselves. As mortar fire fell about him, Lieutenant Swanson employed his radio to call fire directions to the mortar platoon supporting American troops. His fire direction was so accurate, that the then-entrenched enemy was forced to withdraw. Shortly thereafter, he discovered an enemy mortar platoon in action, and called for mortar fire upon it that completely silenced the enemy emplacement. Lieutenant Swanson's initiative, resourcefulness and disregard for personal safety denote him an asset to his organization. Entered military service from Kansas.
